Tools for Selection

Tools for selection include professional journals, trade journals, subject bibliographies, publishers' catalogs, promotional materials, standard review sources and lists of recommended titles. Purchase suggestions from patrons are also an important source.

Patron request does not guarantee purchase of an item, but material may be obtained through resource sharing.

Basic educational trends are collected, but professional level material and textbooks will not be purchased.

Self-published books by local authors are generally not included in the collection.

Standard review sources include, but are not limited to, the following: Booklist, Chicago Tribune Book section, Kirkus, Library Journal, and Publishers Weekly, and large print publication websites; i.e., Thorndike and Random House.

Formats Purchased

Materials are purchased with respect to durability, utilization, and transport. Formats are often selected to run parallel to the physical needs of homebound and physically challenged individuals. Current and popular materials are purchased in large print format when available. Of those large print editions purchased, hard cover as well as soft is purchased with separate but distinct patron preferential motivations. Non-print materials are purchased in digital format including Books on CD, DVDs, and Blu-rays.

Collection Print Materials

Topics in the non-fiction collection include computer science, inspirational and motivational works, religions, financial and investment, cooking, gardening, health and fitness, and home remodeling, crafts, hobbies, home decoration, medical, quilting, sports, essays and humorous writings.

Biography

Magazines

Outreach Services holds a small collection of large and regular print magazines including crafting, cooking and entertainment topics of interest to seniors. The library only keeps the current year of print copies. An additional collection of magazines is available to Orland Park Public Library cardholders through a digital platform.

Fiction

The fiction collection consists of general fiction, mysteries, romance, inspirational and westerns. The collection is driven by patron request for best-selling and popular fiction. Preference with respect to durability, longevity and user ease will drive purchase selection. Currently, hard cover volumes are preferred but Outreach Services purchases soft covers for those target homebound patrons with a need for this format.
